

Tips for Borrowing

Most students at The Art of Education University pay for their degree as they go. You can purchase one course at a time and take courses at your own pace. We offer flexible timelines, anywhere from 2-5 years, so you can work your degree into your budget.

If you prefer to secure a loan and finance your education, you will need to select your own private lender. AOEU does not endorse any particular lender, but many of our students have had success securing student loans through Climb Credit. It is important to borrow responsibly.

HERE ARE SOME HELPFUL TIPS AS YOU RESEARCH PRIVATE LENDERS.

- Revisit trusted lenders you've worked within the past.
- Consult family and friends about lenders they've used and recommend.
- Look for private loans with low fixed interest rates.
- Ask the lender about interest deferral while you are in school.
- Ask the lender about loan forgiveness in the event of death or permanent disability.
- Research consumer complaints against the lender from the Better Business Bureau.

To help art teachers manage their financial obligations and the investment in a master's degree program, AOEU offers flexible timelines and the ability to pay for your degree as you go.

The Art of Education University does not participate in financial aid.
